

Steve Berman, M.D., F.A.A.P

Steve Berman, M.D. F.A.A.P. is a Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Colorado School of Medicine, head of Primary Care Pediatrics at the Children's Hospital in Denver and Director of the Children's Outcomes Research Center. As a former President of the American Academy of Pediatrics, he is a leader in child advocacy, child health policy, clinical and outcomes research, international health and pediatric education.

Dr. Berman has authored six child health bills to provide health insurance to low-income children, require seat belt use, and mandate immunizations and preventive care in insurance plans. His research has been supported by organizations such as the Centers for Disease Control and the World Health Organization where he acted as an advisor of acute respiratory infections in more than 80 developing countries. He is the author of the pediatric textbook, Pediatric Decision Making.

Dr. Berman is a graduate of Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut, and Temple University School of Medicine in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He completed his pediatric training at the University of Colorado. He has two sons Seth and Ben and his wife, Elaine Berman, currently serves as president of the Denver Public Schools Board of Education.