BUZZ LIGHTYEAR (LIGHT-YEER)

Self-Appointed Captain of the Alliance Team Lightyear from the Intergalactic Alliance

- Inspired by former NASA astronaut, Buzz Aldrin
- Star of Toy Story Mania! attraction at Walt Disney World Resort and Disneyland Resort
- Most notably known for co-starring in the Disney•Pixar films "Toy Story" and "Toy Story 2"
- Holds a degree from Pixar
- Excited to officially launch into space

"TO INFINITY AND BEYOND"

- Buzz Lightyear is scheduled to blast off "to infinity and beyond" on May 31 on the Space Shuttle Discovery on mission STS-124 for his first-ever journey into space at approximately 5:02 p.m. ET from Kennedy Space Center in Florida
- As part of his mission, Buzz will have his dreams come true aboard STS-124 and test the laws of zero gravity while his fellow NASA astronauts install Kibo's large Japanese Pressurized Module (JPM) and the lab's robotic arm system before transferring to the International Space Station, where he will stay until his return flight in the fall
- On land, students nationwide have the opportunity to test their own space ranger skills in a unique educational program co-developed by NASA and Disney's Youth Educational Series (Disney Y.E.S.)

THE "BUZZ" OF CLASSROOMS ACROSS THE COUNTRY

- Buzz is spreading the word that education and space exploration can be fun
- Buzz hopes that his mission to space will encourage students to follow his space travels, while sparking their own interests in space exploration
- Educational materials featuring Buzz will available online at www.nasa.gov for teachers and students nationwide to incorporate into their classroom curriculum beginning day of launch through the end of 2008
- While in space, Buzz will join the crew of the International Space Station conducting an experiment as part of NASA's "Toys in Space" program where he will get to fly in zero gravity in celebration of the opening of Toy Story Mania! at Disneyland Resort in California on June 17
